Losing someone close to you can bring up a lot of different feelings. Color in the feelings that you are currently experiencing.

What are some positive ways you can think of to cope with each of these feelings?